To whom it may concern:

I am writing over the concern of the FCC in freezing support for the rural wireless infrastructure by putting a cap on USF funds. I would not feel safe in taking away continuous support of providing communication structures in Rural America. It would make me feel safer as a parent in knowing that my son or loved family members can reach out to me at anytime. It would make me feel helpless if my wife's car broke down and harm's end happened to her because she was unable to reach me by her cell phone. I think by providing continuous support in USF funds as it provides a safety mechanism that helps us feel at ease in knowing when and how we can help family members.

Thanks
